

BUT 868, MOSTLY WOMEN, SAVED WHEN STEAMER TITANIC SANK

MEAGRE DETAILS LEARNED BY WIRELESS GIVE NO HOPE OF OTHER SURVIVORS BEING RESCUED--OVER THIR- TEEN HUNDRED THOUGHT DROWNED.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, April 16.—The appalling magnitude of the wreck of the liner Titanic has been but little mitigated by the fragmentary information which has filtered in today. The rescuing steamer Carpathia has 868 survivors on board, according to the latest figures received at the office of the White Star line in New York.

This increase of the list of saved by about 200, from the number first reported, but except for this the favorable details are insignificant compared with the supreme fact that the Titanic is at the bottom of the Atlantic and that the shattered wreck took with her about 1,550 victims to their death.

868 Survivors.
The first reports giving the total survivors at 675, were varied by more favorable news early today, first from Captain Rostron of the Carpathia, who gave the number at about 800, and later by the positive announcement of the White Star line that there are 868 survivors of the Titanic on board the Carpathia.

Picture of the Titanic loaned to the Gazette by A. A. Russell the Janesville Agent of the White Star Steamship Company.

But with these revised figures there remain 1,341 persons, passengers and crew of the Titanic, who are today unaccounted for.

Carpathia Only Rescuer.
Two messages received shortly after ten o'clock today by the Marconi Wireless Telegraph company from the company's stations at Cape Race and Sable Island, make it appear that there are none of the Titanic's passengers on either the Parolan or Virginian.

One message reads: "The Marconi station at Sable Island has been in communication with the Parolan and the ship has no passengers from the Titanic."

The other message reads: "The Marconi station at Cape Race reports they have had no communication with the Virginian and does not believe any of the Titanic's passengers are on that vessel."

Oliver's Formal Report.
Halifax, April 15.—The Allen line Parolan reports via Sable Island that she has no passengers from the Titanic on board. The Parolan has just come into touch with the Sable Island wireless station.

St. John's, Newfoundland, April 15.—All hope that any of the passengers or members of the crew of the Titanic other than those on the Carpathia were alive was abandoned this afternoon. All of the steamers which have been cruising in the vicinity of the disaster have continued on their voyages.

Search for Survivors.
Halifax, April 15.—The Parolan steamed through much of a heavy field of ice looking for passengers from the ill-fated ship. No life rafts or bodies were sighted among the floating wreckage which covered a large area.

Women and Children.
New York, April 15.—Of the 201 first cabin passengers thus far accounted for 132 are women, 63 men and 6 children. Of the 116 second cabin passengers reported surviving 88 are women, 16 men and 10 children.

To Arrive Thursday.
Washington, April 15.—The Carpathia will arrive in New York Thursday afternoon, according to a wireless dispatch received by Collector Loeb, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury. Curtis has directed that the customs regulations be waived and that the handling of everybody be facilitated.

Mail Matter Lost.
New York, April 15.—Postmaster Edward M. Morgan stated today that the White Star liner Titanic had on board 3,500 sacks of mail. It is not likely, he said, that the mails were saved. As the standard ocean mail bag holds about 2,000 letters, it is estimated that in all about seven million pieces of mail matter must have been lost.

No Hope.
Halifax, April 15.—The Sable Island cable ship Minia reported this afternoon through the wireless station here that she had sighted a great mass of wreckage, but no boats or rafts from the Titanic. This for the time being disposed of the hope that the ship which was anchored off Cape Race first called for help might have picked up some of the Titanic's passengers.

Men Drowned.
St. John's, Newfoundland, April 15.—Messages from Cape Race seem to indicate that a very large majority of the men who were on the steamer Titanic went down with the ship.

Salt Water Berg.
Washington, April 15.—Captain Charles A. McAllister, engineering chief of the revenue cutter service today expressed the belief that the mass that sent the Titanic to the bottom of the ocean was a salt water iceberg and not a polar berg of glacial formation. He pointed out that the ratio of ice above water in such a berg was only one-eighth of its bulk. It was only one-fifth of its bulk. It was only one-fifth of its bulk. It was only one-fifth of its bulk.

Extended Sympathy.
Washington, April 15.—The house of representatives unanimously adopted a resolution today extending sympathy to the relatives of those who met their death in the disaster of the Titanic.

Buckled to Pieces.
Washington, April 15.—George Fisher, inspector general of the federal steamboat inspection service said today he believed the Titanic plunged into the iceberg with such momentum that the impact buckled her to pieces. The vessel in all probability he added, ran over a submerged end of the berg which ripped upon her bottom; that her safety compartments thus quickly filled and the vessel became a hopeless mass of twisted steel, wedged in a mountain of ice.

In England.
London, Eng., April 15.—Premier Asquith in a brief statement in the house of commons this afternoon gave public expression to Great Britain's sympathy in connection with the Titanic disaster. After reading out to the members the messages of the White Star company already published, the premier continued:

"Perhaps the house will allow me to add: But I am afraid we must brace ourselves to confront one of those terrible events in the order of providence which baffle foresight, which appall the imagination and make us realize the inadequacy of words to do justice to what we feel."

Designers' Views.
London, April 15.—Alex. Carlisle, chief designer for Harland & Wolff, the ship builders and the designer of both the Titanic and Olympic and in the course of an interview today said: "When the news first came that the Titanic was sinking by the head, I thought it likely that she would reach port. The fact that she sank within four hours after the impact with the ice indicates that her side was torn out."

Railway Magnate Saved.
Montreal, April 15.—A wireless message received here says that Chas. N. Dwyer, president of the Grand Trunk railway, is among the survivors on board the Carpathia. His wife and daughter have already been reported saved.

Vanderbilt in London.
New York, April 15.—Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, mother of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, announced last night that her son, who was reported to have been on board the Titanic, had not boarded the ship in England, but was still in London.

In Both Houses.
Washington, April 15.—The chaplains of both houses of congress mentioned the Titanic disaster in their invocations today. Chaplain Pierce in the senate referred to the "poor distress of our people and the sad fate that has overtaken our brethren on the great deep," and asked Divine comfort. Chaplain Coulter in the house prayed for more stringent laws for the protection of travelers by land and sea, as well as for those exposed to fire and flood.

800 on Carpathia.
New York, April 15.—Captain Rostron of the steamship Carpathia sent a wireless message to Chas. P. Sumner, general agent of the Cunard line, this morning, giving word that the Carpathia had 800 survivors from the Titanic steamship was proceeding slowly towards New York through a field of ice.

The sinking at 2:20 Monday of the great White Star liner Titanic off the banks of Newfoundland stood out prominently today as drawn from the wireless reports.

Revised loss of life, 1,341 souls. The ten million dollar steamship, with cargo and jewels worth perhaps ten million dollars more, a total loss.

No mention among the survivors of Colonel John Jacob Astor. His bride, who was Miss Madeleine Force of New York, has been saved.

Major Archibald Butt, President Taft's aide in still unaccounted for as are many other persons of international prominence.

J. Bruce Ismay, president of the International Mercantile Marine, owner of the White Star line, is among the survivors, as is his wife.

steaming for New York and should arrive here on Friday.

The rescued passengers drifted in life boats for many hours before rescue came. Wireless messages to St. John's, Newfoundland, report that the Allen Line ship Virginian on route and that she possibly has additional survivors on board.

That she carried survivors has not been confirmed today at daybreak, but confirmation has been found that her sister ship the Parolan, had added in the rescue work as was reported yesterday.

The first report was the ship Carpathia carried nearly nine hundred survivors as against six hundred and seventy-five as reported yesterday.

The second message saying that the Virginian might have on board others which our down the list of the dead. Captain R. J. Smith, commander of the Titanic, probably went down to his grave with his ill-fated vessel without once being able to communicate with agents of his line direct. Aside from the "C. Q. D." sent out by his wireless operator not one word from him was received up to the time the Titanic sank how farthest into the ocean.

Presumption is that he met death at his post as a gallant shipper should. That he and his crew endured rigidly the written law of sea, "Women and children first," is plainly indicated by the preponderance of the women survivors reported thus far.

Although Captain Smith was one of the most able commanders since the advent of modern steamships, he had recently met with ill-luck. He was in command of the Titanic's sister ship, the Olympic, when that vessel was in collision with the British cruiser Hawke. Exonerated of all blame for this occurrence, he was placed in charge of the Titanic, only to have disaster when his new charge found the steamship bound for New York in the Solent after leaving Southampton on the return voyage which ended so disastrously.

He had been in the line's employ for more than thirty years. His first important charge was the Majestic.

Although 868 souls are reported to be on board the Carpathia, it is apparent that all of them are not passengers, for it was necessary for members of the Titanic's crew to man the life boats, which set out from the sinking liner. How many of the crew were assigned to each boat is a matter of conjecture.

A similar unsettled matter is the percentage of the first-class passengers among those saved.

While the number of survivors shows that "Women first" was the rule, it should apply equally to the second class passengers, and this may have cost the lives of many prominent men above deck.

It is natural of course that the names of the more obscure passengers who survived would be slower in reaching land. False news and false hopes which led to the belief yesterday that the Titanic was unshakable were slowly dispelled by the unfolding of the accident of her loss in a way without precedent.

An eager crowd in most cities in the United States besieged the bulletin boards when it became known that the Titanic had really sunk with a terrible loss of life, and in New York City historical men and women crowded to the White Star line office seeking news of relatives.

Vincent Astor, Colonel Astor's son, spent the entire night waiting for wireless tidings of his father, after vainly visiting the White Star line's offices and the newspaper offices.

The speed at which the Titanic was traveling when she struck against the iceberg will perhaps not be known until the first of her survivors reach port. Whatever was her rate of progress, ship-builders both here and abroad, admit that while modern steamships may defy wind and weather, the fact remains that fog and ice must remain ever elements of danger.

No ship, they pointed out, no matter how strongly built, no matter how many watertight compartments who may have or how well she may be protected, may plunge headlong against a wall of ice without suffering grave results.

TITANIC LARGEST OF OCEAN LINERS

Most Elaborate of All the Ocean Gray-hounds—Gorgeous Apartments.

The Titanic, which sunk last night after striking an iceberg off Cape Race, carrying many humans to their death, not only was the largest ship afloat, but was noted for the wonderful innovations offered its passengers by the builders.

When the hugeness of the craft is considered, it appears impossible for it to founder under the worst kind of accident, yet its maiden trip appears to have been its last.

Larger even than the Olympic, which had been considered a marvel, it had all the equipment required by persons of unlimited means that had been omitted from its nearest rival.

Had Private Promenades.
The Titanic's 65,000 tons of displacement and 46,328 tons gross register were not its sole claims to distinction as the most elaborate handiwork of the shipwrights. The Titanic was the first steamer to be built with private promenades in connection with some of its splendid suites.

The new and greatest ocean liners had been, in fact, floating apartment hotels, but it fell to the Titanic to provide the transatlantic traveler with an actual private residence, even to the exclusive promenade deck, without encroaching upon the space of the other hundreds of first cabin voyagers.

The Titanic, like its sister ship, the Olympic, possessed the great length of 882 feet 6 inches, and a beam of 92 feet 6 inches. Over the boat deck, the Titanic's beam spanned 91 feet from rail to rail.

Four great funnels rose 815 feet above the uppermost deck with a total distance of 175 feet from the top of the funnels to the keel.

Appeared to Be Accident Immune.
Fifteen watertight bulkheads divided the great vessel, making it unlikely even if half of its compartments should be filled with water. For this reason it is believed the crash must have torn away the greater part of the bulkheads.

Eleven steel decks added to the Titanic's sturdiness, the main promenade deck alone having an unbroken sweep of 190 yards on either side of the ship. A Parolan cafe and palm room were only some of the features of the remarkable vessel.

Besides the main dining saloon, which seated nearly 600 passengers, there was an à la carte restaurant, French service, which seated 200 passengers.

The size of the staterooms also was one of the remarkable features of the big boat. Varying from eight feet to nine feet six inches in height, they were all roomy. "Some of the two berth cabins were seventeen feet by ten feet six inches in size. There were no four-berth rooms, and a great number of single berth rooms, eight and a half by ten and a half feet, were provided.

A great swimming pool, squash racket court, gymnasium, and the Turkish baths were closely together on a lower deck.

Dining Rooms Elaborate.
As in its sister ship, the Olympic, passengers on the Titanic descended the grand staircase to the main reception room, which in turn led into the great dining saloon, from which it was separated by glass. Straddling the full width of the vessel amidships, the main dining saloon was light and cheerful.

Three screws, propelled by turbine and reciprocating engines, furnished the motive power.

MANY VIOLATIONS OF THE GAME LAWS

$215 Were Total of Fines Levied Against Offenders in State For Last Week Alone.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., April 15.—Illegal hunting, trapping and fishing in Wisconsin last week cost offenders $215 in fines, besides costs, as the result of prosecutions brought by the state fish and game department. Fifteen cases were in Dane county alone, the offenses being spearing of fish, netting fish and trapping muskrats out of season. Three cases of dynamiting fish were reported from Grand Rapids and three for two and a half term for one imposed. At Green Bay two men were fined $25 each for illegal fishing. In that city also, wardens seized 401 pounds of pike caught in the closed season. At Kenosha a box of fish marked as local poultry was confiscated. Trunks, butter tubs and divers other receptacles are frequently used to evade the state laws. Among other offenses punished last week were spearing fish at night, two Waushara county men being arrested, using knives of $25 each, and shooting ducks, two men at Neenah being caught.

The trout season opened yesterday and the fishing is up to the usual standard. Wardens and the state department are lessening licensees. Wardens in northern Wisconsin report that grouse and partridge stood the severe winter well, being able to find shelter from the cold under the snow in the lack of a crust. The deer also survived the winter in excellent shape and although "poor" they escaped starvation, which has been the fate of deer numbers in past winters. Grouse are said to be more plentiful than in many years at this period, and ducks will be unusually numerous next fall.

A. C. GRAY IS NAMED CHAIRMAN OF BOARD

UNANIMOUS BALLOT IS CAST FOR EVANSVILLE MAN BY AFTERNOON.

ALL MEMBERS PRESENT

Adjournment Taken at Half Past Two O'clock to Allow New Chairman Time to Name Committees.

Supervisor A. C. Gray of the city of Evansville was unanimously elected to the position of chairman of the board at the opening meeting of the special April session of the board at the city clerk's office this afternoon. Supervisor Charles E. Moore offered the motion that the clerk be instructed to cast a unanimous ballot for Mr. Gray and the motion was put by former Chairman John A. Paul, who called the meeting to order.

In taking the chair Mr. Gray thanked the board for the honor conferred upon him and upon the city which he represented. He stated that it was nearly thirty years since the city of Evansville had been honored with a city chairman. "We have plenty of business and legal ability right on the floor here," he said, "and with the help of our veteran county clerk we will try to make this a business meeting of the board."

Change in Rules.
Supervisor Gettle moved that the rules governing the last board govern the present one, with the exception of rule No. 4. To this he offered an amendment to the effect that the equalization committee be composed of four members from each assembly district and one at large, and that the committee on school matters be composed of one member from each assembly district and one at large under the jurisdiction of the county superintendent.

Mr. Gettle explained that this change was necessary following the change from three districts to two assembly districts in Rock county. The membership of the committee will remain the same as formerly under the amendment offered. Supervisor Gettle's motion was carried.

Moore, Vice-Chairman.
On the motion of Supervisor Gettle the clerk cast a unanimous ballot for Supervisor Charles E. Moore of Magnolia as vice-chairman of the board to succeed himself. The motion was carried and Mr. Moore was declared vice-chairman.

On the motion of Supervisor Gettle the board adjourned until tomorrow morning at ten-thirty to allow the chairman an opportunity to name the committees.

SELLS INVENTION TO CAPITALISTS

In order to devote his time entirely to an experimental work, Luther Burbank has sold his fruit, flower and plant creations to Rollo Hough and W. Gardner Smith, of San Francisco. He has long desired to leave the marketing of his products to others, but has never found the right parties before. The men are backed by considerable capital, and it is hoped that the arrangement will give the wizard of horticulture opportunity for developing other wonders in making over nature.

Effect But No Cause.
"So there's another rupture of Mount Vesuvius," said Mrs. Partridge, as she put on her spectacles. "The paper tells us about burning lather running down the mountains, but it don't tell how it got there."

Prophecy Verified.
"This child," said the clergyman, who was about to christen Brown's baby, "may some day make a noise in the world." And the next minute, when Master Brown felt the cold water, the good man's prophecy was verified more speedily than he had expected.

Taking a Chance.

"What I want," said the young man, "is to get married and have a peaceful, quiet home." "Well," said the widower of a couple, "sometimes it works that way, and then again sometimes it's like John's a debate society." —TIT-BITS.

Darkening Mexican Clocks.
Residents of Guanajuato, says the Mexican Herald, have complained to the ayuntamiento against the practice of putting on the lights that illumine the faces of the public clocks after 10 o'clock in the evening and they have requested the inspector of clocks to take into consideration that they are unable to ascertain the time after that hour because the lights are turned off at 10 o'clock sharp.

Mixed Metaphor.
The famous commingling of metaphors beginning, "I smell a rat; I shall slip him in the bud," has been surpassed. According to London Punch a Yorkshire paper writes: "We hope Mr. Atkinson will keep his word and, with the ability he has always shown, tear to shreds and tatters the subterranean methods of the clique which at present rides the high horse."

"I GUESS I AM A LITTLE SLOW."

How often one hears the above remark when the time of day is inquired for. What's the use of having that kind of time. Something you can't depend on? How is your watch running? A little slow? A little fast? Is it out of repair? If so bring it to us and have it fixed right.

We Sell the Best Kitchen Cabinet on Earth

When you talk about there being better Kitchen Cabinets than the Hoosier

Every potato slyly winks his eye.
Every cabbage shakes its head.
Every beet gets red in the face.
Every onion gets stronger.
Every stalk is shocked.
Corn sticks up its ear.
Every foot of ground kicks.

Congress enacted a law that any graduate of a school of Domestic Science must be able to answer two questions:

1st. "Where on earth is the best Kitchen Cabinet made?"

Answer, "New Castle, Ind."

2nd. "What is its name?"

Answer, "Hoosier. It's the cabinet that made New Castle famous."

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By Roy K. Moulton.

IT'S A CINCH.

He tips his hat politely as he helps her on the car. And finds a seat for her, it matters not how scarce they are; He sits right straight through every show and never tries to slide Out of his seat between the acts to buy a clove outside.

He asks if she would object if he enjoyed a smoke. When she approached him with a "touch" he never says he's broke.

He never goes out evenings, for he doesn't care to roam. He wears his smoking jacket all the time that he's at home.

He treats her as politely as he'd treat a neighbor's wife. He couldn't let a swear word out, not even to save his life.

He hangs his clothes up carefully and simply does on style. He has no slovenly manners and he always wears a smile.

He doesn't growl about hard times, or quarrel with his food. He's simply shocked at everything that anyone of the rude.

He gets home from his office on the minute every day. And there is no attraction that can make him stay away.

His household etiquette is simply great and life is one sweet song. Yes, gentle reader, it's a cinch, they have not been married long.

CAUGHT ON THE FLY.

Some of those presidential boomers have fallen so flat that they could be folded up and mailed back home in regulation envelopes.

An archduke has given up his title in order to marry a poor girl. He must be an impostor and not a real archduke at all.

Stinking of the "man higher up," Mr. Morgan's new office is to be on the thirtieth floor of a skyscraper.

An eastern paper notifies the public that Mr. Sherman is still vice president. Yes, indeed. Very still.

A noted Frenchwoman in New York says poets and actors are the only men who really live. Some of them will be surprised to know this. Captain Piazza is in command of the Italian fleet of aeroplanes. The captain sounds more like a front porch than an aviator.

If Mr. Taft can only send his cabinet away on a long trip around the world during 1912 he may win with the election.

But is Champ Clark a light, welter or heavyweight champ.

THE CITY.

I'm not dead in love with the city; its rumble, its jumble and roar, its atmosphere sooty and gritty makes living naught less than a chore.

The crowd ever pushing and jumping and elbowing after the pole; Where every last fellow is bumping for no one at all but himself.

I don't want to live in the shadow of skyscrapers half a mile high. I don't want a place that is sadder than one where no sunshine is high.

There isn't a flower with the pleids; There isn't no grass beneath your feet; There isn't no sort of a chicken save them which is really to eat.

It doesn't matter much where you ramble. You won't hear a lone rooster crow. And its purr say to gambler you won't hear a sound that you know; Just thumpin' and chuggin' and foolin'.

Or automobiles all the time. Just burrah' up benzine and acotin' Around in a way that's a crime.

There's nothing but hurry and flurry and bustle and bustle and jam. The best thing they do is to worry and hasten through life with a slam O, yes, I'm a rubo I confess it. The haysed still clings to my hair.

It doesn't take long for to guess it. It's written on me everywhere. But I do not regard it a pity for rural surroundings to pine.

They're welcome to live in the city. I'll take the old homestead for mine.

Society of Danes in Session. Fresno, Cal., April 16.—Danish songs and old Danish folk dances will feature the program of the annual convention of the Society of Danes of California and Nevada, which will hold forth in this city during the remainder of the week. Today was given over to the reception of the delegates who numbered between 500 and 600 and came from many points.

Light in Ocean's Depths. Distinct traces of light have been detected at the great depth of 500 fathoms below the ocean surface by Sir John Murray's oceanographical expedition of 1910. More recently, brightly colored organisms have been dredged up from an even greater depth, in the form of rose foraminifera with rose pink shells.

Fallacious Doctrine. We are only just beginning to recover from the fallacy imposed on us by our Puritan ancestors that what a child liked was best for him. They held that life should be made as disagreeable as possible, and we had suffered for their doctrine.

Two Farm Homes. I visited two farm homes. On a table in the living room of one of these homes I found several late magazines, newspapers in plenty and some good books. In a corner of the room was a fair sized library containing books on agriculture, history, travel and fiction.

In the other home there was no periodical literature save the county seat newspaper and books were scarce. I found what I expected to find as to the character of these two homes.

In the home where good reading abounded there were intelligence, thrift, economy, business-system, prosperity and joyous home living.

In the other home there were bickering and nagging, wastefulness, lack of good management and a woeful ignorance concerning the progress of the world at large.

More than that—The boys and girls in the home without magazines and books found their pleasures away from the home. Some of these pleasures were silly, and some were harmful. Gossip took the place of reading. The moral tone of the home was not high.

The difference? Without books and newspapers of general circulation the farmer can know little or nothing of current events, of the news of church and state, politics—the things that make for good citizenship and intelligent activity in human affairs.

Without books and farm papers and newspapers father and the boys will know scarcely anything of market tendencies or scientific farming methods or farm management or horticulture or breeding or veterinary and other lines of up to date farming.

Without farm journals or magazines will mother and the girls know very much about domestic science or poultry or nursing or home management.

But—Above all else there is lacking the silent influence of good literature in the building up of character.

A good book not only gladdens the heart, but broadens the vision and lifts up the life.

Books and good reading are infallible indices of the character of a home.

REGAL

Understand construction has been used for years. It's new only as applied to automobiles. Famous designers and engineers, all the authorities of note, are a unit of agreement that "Understand" construction is the perfect, consequently the only type of construction, especially where speed and absolute safety are required. Hence, it is invariably used on railway trucks, interurban cars, etc. But hitherto the only objection to it in the automobile world was its addition of price. It cost so very much more to build an "Understand" automobile. Despite its excellent advantages, motor car manufacturers considered this extra cost. It meant either a production of profit.

The records of the past are reflected today: the Regal has of long standing ahead is at the very apex of justification. The Regal "25" Underland Touring Car at $550 is a challenge in value. Write, call or telephone for a demonstration.

NEW COMMISSIONERS ASSUME DUTIES OF THE OFFICE TODAY

ROY CUMMINGS DRAWS THE FOUR YEAR TERM.—MINOR OFFICIALS ARE APPOINTED.

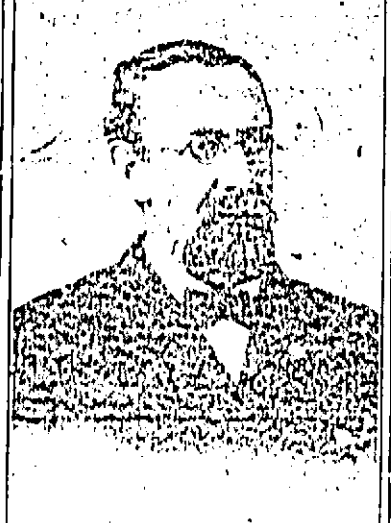

INAUGURAL ADDRESS

New Commissioners Make Plain Statement to Citizens of What They Hope to Accomplish With Their Assistance.

Mayor James A. Fathers and Councilmen R. M. Cummings, and C. K. Milmore met at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon in the council room at the city hall and took the initial steps toward the inauguration of the commission term of government in Janesville.

The meeting was called to order by Mayor Fathers, followed by a roll call and the reading of the formal announcement to the public of the new government.

This was followed by the introduction

JAS. A. FATHERS

tion and passage of a resolution that Councilmen Cummings and Milmore draw lots to determine who was to have the long and who the short term.

Mayor Nichols was invited to draw the lots, the name of Mr. Cummings being drawn for the four year term.

The offices of Comptroller, City Clerk, Deputy Treasurer, City Assessor, and Health Officer were established and the following salaries for each office: City Clerk, $500; Deputy City Treasurer, $500; City Assessor, $500; Health Officer, $500.

On the motion of Councilman Cummings Miss Elsie Fathers was named Deputy City Treasurer, and on the motion of Councilman Milmore J. P. Hammerlund was named City Clerk; W. H. Dougherty, City Attorney; Dr. M. A. Cunningham, City Health Officer; and Frank Smith, City Assessor.

James Gillespie was named Auditor of the city hall at a salary of $750.

The following departments were created with heads as follows: Mayor Fathers, City Affairs, Public Health and Safety, Finance, Police and Fire Departments.

Milmore: Highways, Streets, Bridges, Sewers, Parks, Public Improvement, Public Property.

Cummings: Accounts, Assessments, License, Judiciary, Public Buildings, Street Lighting.

The regular time of meeting was set at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon every second Tuesday, beginning April 16. The Council adjourned until that hour tomorrow.

The following was the inaugural address read at the opening of the session.

We, the council of the city of Janesville, have been elected to carry on the plan of commission form of government.

We desire to thank the public for the confidence reposed in us; we also realize the responsibility and importance of the duties and we hope for a not too impatient constituency as to slight of the fact that "public office is a trust," and that all things considered and done will be in the interest and for the welfare of the whole people.

Things done that are secondary to the reorganization, will be "tentative" according to results obtained.

"Efficiency with due regard of economy" will be the watchword.

Health.

Sanitary conditions and the public health are of the utmost importance, and to obtain those things without force or compulsion, we must have the hearty cooperation of the citizens; let us take pride in our back yards and alleys with that same portionate care that we do our front yards, and keep them clean.

And while on this question let us remind the owners of property abutting on the river bank and kindly suggest to them that the banks of our beautiful river are a front yard to the public and should be cared for with that idea in view.

The high water which is now prevailing will do much to clear away the rubbish and unsightliness that heretofore has existed along the river banks.

Refrains from dumping boxes, rubbish, etc., into the river or along its banks and thus preserve one of the natural beauties of our city.

Streets.

The building and subsequent care for streets are of first consequence in the line of public improvement, and we trust that the citizenship will support us in our efforts to build in a permanent manner.

We realize that the burden of cost rests largely with the property improved, yet also the fact remains that the city pays a fairly proportionate share of the improvement.

On outlying streets, where macadamizing or other expensive improvement is deemed unnecessary, a surfacing of gravel and the "split log" grader and roller treatment is sufficient and eminently satisfactory and at a nominal cost to the abutting property.

Sprinkling.

Upon investigation we believe that the problem of street sprinkling on dirt or macadam streets, is solved by the introduction of the oiling process and we hope to see the people voluntarily avail themselves of the opportunity, thus ridding the public of the dust annoyance, and consequent unpleasant and unsanitary conditions which arise therefrom.

Bridges.

With the completion of the Fourth avenue, Racine street and South Main for commonly known as the "Paul" bridges, the city is adequately "bridged."

GIRLS' CLASS PLAY IN BELOIT TUESDAY

Capitist Girls' Class to Repeat Play in Line City April 23—Afternoon Performance.

Arrangements have been made to produce the "Old Maid's Convention," given by the girls of the Baptist church last Friday night, a second time in the Baptist church in Beloit on Tuesday evening, April 23, according to a letter received by Mrs. E. C. Bailey, who has the class in charge.

Its first production was such a success that Afton ladies are also talking of making an effort to secure the company for one evening there although nothing definite has been decided and no time set.

At the first production of the play in the Baptist church last Friday night the young ladies cleared about $150, which will be donated to the church fund for the purchase of new carpets. Over $185 was taken in by tickets, most of it coming from the twelve pages of advertising printed on the program. Twenty-four dollars went for printing and one-third of the ticket sale was given to Miss Betty Stevens of Beloit for the instruction and training. Several smaller bills reduced the amount to $120, which may be added to by the performances in Beloit and Afton if they decide to have them.

MORE MONEY NEEDED TO AID FAMILY OF EDWARD LAWRENCE

First Call For Aid For Unfortunate Widow and Children Meets With Quick Response.

In response to the call for financial aid to the widow and children of the late Edward Lawrence who was drowned last Friday night, some money has already been left at the Gazette office and subscribed on lists being circulated by H. L. McNamara, who will act as custodian of the fund stated this afternoon that while some money had been received and promises of more telephoned in still he trusted that much more would come in within the next day or two.

Persons wishing to aid this unfortunate family can either leave their money at the Gazette office or hand it to Mr. McNamara in person. A full list of those subscribing will be given later.

All proper children are destructive. That is their way of finding out what things are made of. But they get over it. It is not well to take their innocent activities too seriously.

WON HIGH HONORS
AT ATHLETIC MEET

Claude Waldo Keegan, former Evansville boy, wins trophies at Brooklyn Tourney.

Evansville, April 15.—Many Evansville people will remember Claude Waldo Keegan, who grew from childhood to manhood in this city, and his friends will be pleased to hear that he has recently won athletic honors and trophies on the athletic field. A great indoor track meet was lately held in the Armory at Brooklyn, New York, and at an evening entertainment given there by his regiment, and before an audience of eight thousand spectators Mr. Keegan won the prize for best shot put, which was a magnificent silver cup with a handle and standing nearly two feet high. Keegan threw the shot forty three feet and broke the Armory record for shot put, and for this he was presented with a beautiful gold watch. Thus he won the cup for best shot put and the watch for breaking the Armory record.

It will no doubt be remembered by some of Mr. Keegan's school friends, that he won a silver cup on shot put at an intercollegiate meet at Ripon, while he was attending Wyandale Academy. He has also been awarded several gold medals. Mr. Keegan now holds a position with the Traffic Engineers' Telephone Company for New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware and has charge of an office located in Brooklyn, New York.

RUBBER.

By Howard L. Rumm.

RUBBER is a commercial product which is used to reinforce suspenders and impart elasticity to the human neck. It grows on trees, but is not so easy to harvest as the coconut or the open-faced pine. The rubber tree does better in a climate which is hot enough to blister the palm on an ice house, and this gives rise to the supposition that rubber is not only paved with good resolutions but of other kinds of vivandure.

Ko much rubber is used in witness- ing the flight of an airplane that the piece has gone up and a new set of automobile tires starts a gaping wound in the incomes of the plain people. If it were not for rubber, the window trimmer, the star gazer and the town gossip would have to learn a new trade. There would also be a shortage in the supply of street loafers on a wet day. There are several substitutes for rubber, such as chewing gum, Elipery elm and harnessmakers' wax, which give the native air the languid air of the contemplative Jersey. Some restaurants use a very ingenious brand of rubber with which to pad griddle cakes and build a waterproof over an omelet, thus making life one long, sweet song for the stomach specialist. A popular delirium is the rubberized round steak, which is harder to swallow than campaign bark. The kind of rubber used in making suspenders is derived mainly from deerskin gum shoes, and is liable to go back on a man without any warning whatever. There are many uses for rubber. The rubber dam is an instrument of torture which prevents the patient from calling for the police. The rubber ruler is a device which is used to emboss unruly pupils with pink blisters. The most wholesome use to which rubber is now put is in the manufacture of teeth, which can be taken down in sections, dusted off, and put back without using a screw-driver.

RUGS, CURTAINS, DRAPERIES ON THE SECOND FLOOR. TAKE ELEVATOR.

Season's Display of Rugs, Carpets and Linoleums

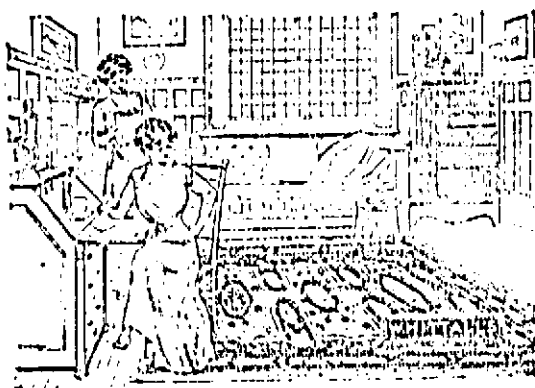

In the Matter of Color and Design the New Rugs, Carpets and Linoleums Are Incomparable.

IT is our determination to sell only reputable merchandise and this policy is emphasized especially in our rug and carpet department. These fabrics are to be subjected to the hardest possible wear, and must be of the best quality obtainable to maintain the big store's standard. Our Spring showing of Rugs include the famous Whittall's, Savalans, Bartworth's, Bigelow Bagdads, Hartford's, Smith's and Sanford's. The fineness and beauty expressed in these weaves will add grace and dignity to any home. The range of colors and shadings are the widest. The rugs are adapted to every purse and purpose—for living room, dining room, sleeping room, library, parlor, bath and den. We want everyone to see our unique window displays and then come in and examine the Rugs and Carpets more closely.

The Reception Hall

Is agreeably and correctly covered with the handsome Soumak design. The designs of these rugs originated on the eastern coast of the Caspian Sea, and are made up of elongated octagons and similar geometric figures, with a central figure of a network of tiny crosses made up in diamond form, of alternate colors on a contrasting field. The 9x12 foot sizes range from $25.00 in Wiltons other sizes from $2.50 upward.

The Library

For this room of quiet rest and study the beautiful Selma designs are particularly desirable, the characteristics of these designs being small figures in floral and diaper effects. In many of these rugs the diamond shaped center piece appears closely covered with small figures in which the pear and palm predominate with an occasional use of the minutely woven fish pattern. The color scheme is superbly rich and distinctive. We have these designs in room size rugs from $18.00 to $55.00.

Beautiful Axminster Rugs

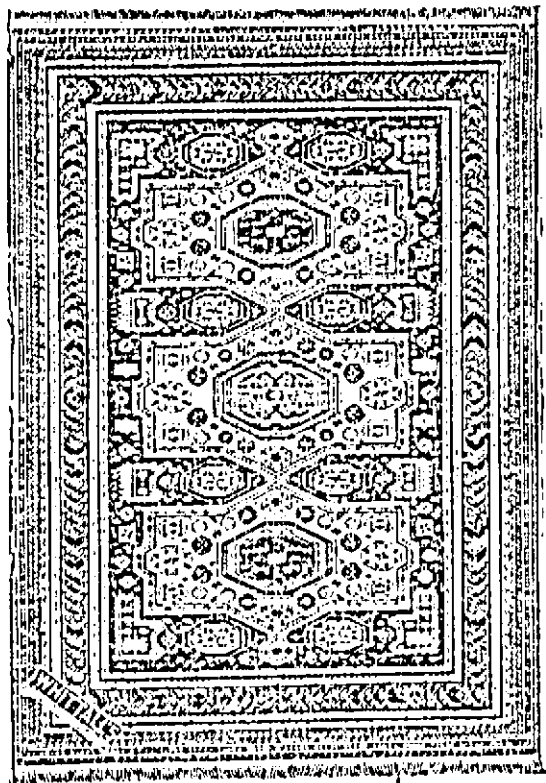

There's scarcely a desirable make or design in Axminster rugs that cannot be procured in our Rug Department this season. If an Oriental, conventional or high art effect in Hartford, Bigelow, Sanford or Smith rugs, is wanted, you will find we have it, and you can purchase the best and newest patterns at a saving over city prices. Sizes 18x36 inch to 11 ft. 3 in. x 15 feet, prices $1.00 to $37.50.

Carpet Rugs Made to Fit Any Room

Plain or bordered rugs made from Tapestry Brussels, Body Brussels, Velvets, Wilton Velvets, also special designs suitable for halls and stairs. We guarantee all work, measurements taken and estimates cheerfully given.

Ingrain Carpets

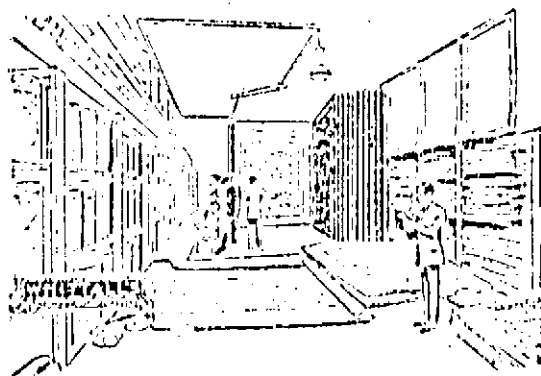

Best all wool two ply cotton chains, half wool, unions and granite carpets in all the new patterns and colors over 100 designs for selection, prices 25c to $1.00 yard.

Whittall's Anglo Persian

This fabric is the nearest approach to the finest Persian type of rug, which has been produced in this country. It meets the requirements of those who enjoy the luxury of a fine pile fabric with the soft, mellow tones of the orient expressed in designs which are pleasing in treatment. It would be hard to find a hand woven rug that will equal its beauty, permanency of color and long wearing quality.

The name "Whittall" is woven in the back of every rug and carpet of this make, and is as much a guarantee of quality as is the word "Sterling" when stamped on silverware.

Doone Art and Melrose Scotch Rugs

These heavy rugs will appeal strongly to the artistic taste of the house furnisher. Popular prices are linked to extreme durability and slightly looking rugs. The Scotch weaves are blended to match every decorative scheme. Rare blues, rich greens and restful browns are represented with dainty floral and stonell borders come in all sizes from 6x9 ft. to 9x12 ft.

Melrose rugs $6.75 to $13.00.

Doone art $9.00 to 25.00.

Small sizes to match above $2.25 to $4.50 each.

Wilton Velvet Rugs

The makers of these rugs have been fortunate in producing colors and designs second only to our Royal Wilton fabrics. The rich designs and colors are most effective, and have no equal for wear in the popular priced fabrics. Special price this week on the 9x12 size $15.75.

The Living Room

For this camping place of the home, the room that is more used and that should be more attractive than any other in the house, the superb Gorevan patterns which are characteristically Persian are suggested. These richly complicated designs are distinguished by a bold imitation usually surrounded by odd geometrical figures with beautiful harmonious borders and corner pieces. A Whittall Gorevan is in every respect as desirable as an original oriental rug and will wear longer. The 9x12 sizes in Wiltons range from $35.00 to $55.00.

The Bed Room

An appropriate covering for this room is one of the beautiful Sereband patterns, in which the old Persian pear is always a strong feature, hundreds of these little figures being arranged with geometrical precision on a Red, Blue, Camel or Ivory ground. This center ground is generally surrounded by a number of little narrow borders filled with very fine floral figures and undulating vines. We have a number of the beautiful Sereband designs from $25.00 upwards in the 9x12 foot size.

Linoleums

We might almost say we have entered the linoleum age. The great utility of linoleums for kitchen or office floors is being appreciated more than ever. Make your old kitchen look like new by using linoleum. We have many new designs in hardwood effects, tile, matting patterns, blocks etc.

Printed quantities at 50c, 59c, 67½c square yard, in 2, 2½ and 4 yards wide.

Inlaid Linoleums $1.00, $1.25, $1.50, $1.75 per square yard. You can't wear the pattern off an inlaid linoleum, because it goes clear through.

Mattings

New importations of both plain and fancy mattings, also the celebrated Hodge's fibre mattings, can be sewn like carpet, very appropriate for chambers, 12½c to 50c yard.

WOMAN'S PAGE

HEART AND HOME TALKS

BY BARBARA BOYD

Earning Money at Home.

FROM almost the beginning of time it seems as if the raising of flowers has been women's work. And to suggest that a woman earn money by raising flowers is no new thought.

But there may be new ways of putting the idea into execution. And since the "City Beautiful" has become the slogan in so many places, this movement may provide a way, that she has not thought of, for a woman to earn money.

For it is acknowledged that one of the ways to make a city or town beautiful is to place window-boxes at the windows of all the homes. Scores of things must be put into operation to make a city beautiful. But window-boxes are by no means the least. Those who are familiar with towns abroad know the beauty that is given to the most ordinary streets by the window-boxes everywhere with their masses of green and bloom. And if we cannot get the parks we want, or the hideous advertising boardings taken down, we can make the front of our homes beauty-spots for the eye to rest upon.

And here is a field for the woman to work in who loves flowers. She can take orders for these window-boxes, make them if she knows how to plant them, look after them until the flowers are well started, in a word, until her work is satisfactory. For the chief aim of all work is to make it satisfactory.

The boxes themselves should be made to harmonize as much as possible with the style of the house. That is, if the house is shingle, the boxes could be shingled. And if they can be brought into harmony in no other way, they can be in the matter of paint, for they can be painted the same as the woodwork of the house. If the house has a porch, boxes for the porch can also be made. And it may be that further work will develop in the way of planning pretty flower effects for the yard, and possibly planting and caring for them.

In seeking such work, a woman should not go to those houses where a florist would be likely to be called in. But she should rather seek the modest, unpretentious home, where the work of a florist would perhaps be beyond the family means, but where there is sufficient income to spare a moderate amount for beautifying. A professional naturally has to charge more than one who has no business office and equipment to keep up. And she is not trespassing on his ground, for her customers would not patronize him anyway, because they would not be able to afford his services.

Many business men are now beautifying their offices and stores with window-boxes. And she might get orders in these places, if she called the matter to the attention of the proprietor, and her charge was moderate. Often business men would not bother themselves to seek out a florist and order certain things. But if somebody put the matter all out and dried, before them, and offered to put the work through without any trouble to them for a reasonable charge, they might be very glad to have it done.

And such work, if it is done to the satisfaction of customers, always branches out. One thing leads to another. A customer wants this done. Or she tells a friend of what is being done, and this friend wonders if she can get so and so done for her. And thus the work grows. Years ago a girl who loved flowers, and who was suddenly thrown on her own resources, raised plants and sold them to her friends. Her plants were always so healthy and such fine bloomers that people began to ask her for seeds. And now she has a large flower-seed business. So one can never foresee just how a small effort may work out. The main thing to do is to give satisfaction from the start, and then the rest will follow.

old china, powder, silver or mirrors and that he would not try to reply to requests by letter for exact prices on articles that he had never seen.

Strange as it may seem after the persistent raids of the china collectors there are yet valued pieces in the parlor cupboards of some old houses where families have lived for many years.

Not long ago in a well-to-do New England farmer's home there were four different and complete china tea sets and some beautiful china tea pots that had been inherited in the family and no money could buy. Eventually these pieces will be scattered among many people and the collectors will run some of them down by generous offers.

HOW TO LIVE ONE HUNDRED YEARS.

I expect to live one hundred years. It is very simple when you know how.

1. Keep clean. All disease is caused by uncleanness—principally internal.
2. Drink nearly a gallon of fluid in a day—pure water and milk are best.
3. Do not eat more than two meals a day of wholesome food. Overeating kills more people than tuberculosis and pneumonia combined.
4. Let all the food remain in the stomach twice as long as most persons do. If you don't it will be worse than wasted.
5. Sleep winter and summer with the head of your bed under an open window—Eugene Drewier.

Household Hints—Hot biscuits generously buttered and spread with jelly are delicious served with game.

A brick makes an excellent rest for the flat iron, as it holds the heat.

Dried lemon peel sprinkled over coals will destroy any disagreeable odor in the house.

An emergency menu, or several of them, are most valuable additions to any housekeeper's outfit. Then when unexpected company drops in, a meal all planned and materials all at hand make life a poem.

One of the very best remedies for constipation and inactive liver is butter-milk. Drink a glass every morning before breakfast.

When it is necessary to keep ice in a refrigerator, place a flannel cloth over a bowl and tie it securely. Lay the ice in the flannel and cover with another piece. The drip will fall into the bowl and the ice will last for several hours.

Apples and grape fruit are the aristocrats of fruits.

An unwepted glass of lemonade is a splendid liver tonic, taken on retiring.

When preparing rice, cook enough to be used in several dishes. It will keep and save the time and fuel.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

THESE are some people in this world who live every moment of their lives in a strenuous, tense way, and then wonder why they are so tired at night, why they grow old so fast, why they don't get fat, or why they have nervous breakdowns. The real wonder is that they are not more tired at night, that they do not grow old more rapidly, that they aren't a great deal thinner, and that they don't more often have nervous breakdowns.

Walking is a splendid exercise, but not if you walk as if to a fire, with every nerve keyed up, and your mind passionately intent on your destination. And that is the way this type of person almost always walks, even if he is only out for an afternoon stroll and has all the time there is.

And not only do these folks do active things, such as walking, in an unnecessarily strenuous manner, but many things also which the normal person does quite passively they are tense and active about. Listening, for instance, I have known a person of this type to come home from an hour's lecture as tired as if she had been doing a family washing. The explanation of her exhaustion was that she disagreed with the speaker and had been sitting on the edge of her chair mentally contradicting every word he said. Naturally she had over-spent her mental energy, and suffered and made other people suffer in consequence.

Perhaps you would not think that it would be possible to be in bed strenuously, but it is, and a great many people do just this. They are so keyed up that they don't know how to relax even when they go to bed at night, and consequently sleep in cramped positions with many of their muscles still tense. The doctor at a big college for women always places great emphasis on just this point—"Don't lie in bed strenuously," she urges, "remember what the bed is for. Let it hold you up. It is quite capable of doing that. Don't try to relieve the bed of part of your weight."

Occasional strenuousness has its value; perpetual strenuousness always defeats its end. "I know what the trouble is," Theodore Parker once said in reference to some reform about which he was vexed because they progressed too slowly to satisfy him. "The Lord isn't in a hurry and I am." People who are always in a hurry are always in trouble, because they are out of time with the infinite, and consequently out of tune with their best selves and the best of the world. "The Universe is never in a hurry." It is written of Mary Lyons, the founder of Mt. Holyoke College, a woman who knew how to be strenuous but also knew how to be patient: "The quiet, undeviating round of the seasons gave her patience; she caught the secret of waiting tirelessly for the forces of God to act."

There are a great many people in this world who need to learn much from "the quiet, undeviating round of the seasons."

Are you one of them?

TALKS with our WOMEN READERS

Edna K. Woolley

"Talking about economical streaks," said the Man-with-the-Jolly-Laugh, "that story about the coronary points the other day made a hit with my wife. She read it and she said, 'There, that's YOU!'"

"Well, you know," went on the Man-with-the-Jolly-Laugh, "I do go out to the barn and around the place sometimes and see some little thing that looks useful to me. And by Jove, a little waste hurts me more than if I would actually go out and throw $500 at somebody."

"Anyway, I guess those economical streaks are kind of peculiar to us men. Of course I'm not as bad as my wife says. I don't calculate that a match ought to be burned at both ends before it's considered used up. But I've got some old clothes hanging around that somehow I can't part with."

"Now I've got a raft of neckties. Says my wife the other day: 'James, why do you keep all those old neckties littering up the place? There must be a thousand of them, and I know you'll never wear any of them again. Why don't you give them away or get rid of them somehow?'"

"Well, I went and looked over those neckties. Some of them had been lying there for years. I'd hate to be caught wearing some of them. But, by Jove, when I began to look them over, they recalled so many old associations that I simply couldn't bear to part with them."

"And then, I thought, who knows how they might come in useful some day? There was a striped one that ordinary spoons, such as you could buy almost everywhere. They made an acceptable wedding present for my friend, and I considered I have saved some money and got rid of something we didn't want."

"Well, the other day my wife had lunch with the bride. When I saw her afterward, she told me about the occasion, adding:

"And what do you think, James? Their spoons are exactly 'like some we have.'"

"Of course I laughed. That made her suspicious."

"James," said she, "what did you give those people for a wedding present?"

"I explained. But she couldn't see the economy of my notion at all."

"James Jones Blank!" said my wife, "I think you are perfectly dreadful. Those spoons were given to me by my best old school chum for a wedding present and I wouldn't have given them away for anything under the sun."

"I argued that they had been lying in the safe deposit box for years perfectly useless and that there were thousands of others just like them at every silversmith's in the land; but she kept on mourning for those spoons just the same. She wouldn't even listen to my suggestion to go out and buy another set like them, saying they wouldn't be the same spoons and have the same association."

"Oh, well, I suppose it was like my neckties. We're all pretty much alike in streaks."

ENTIRE ORGANISM HAS PART IN DIGESTION.

Digestion is not a purely physical process, performed independently of the entire organism. The entire organism is engaged in the process, controlled by the sub-conscious mind, subject to the influence of the conscious mind, the sovereign will. And, conversely, the influence of feeding is not confined to the special digestive organs, nor to certain effects which we denominate "physical." The influence of feeding is all-pervading. And upon the quality of the food and the degree of expenditure of vitality in the process of nutrition depends largely the quality of the life, mental, moral and physical. The question: "What Shall We Eat?" becomes in this light doubly important.

When using oil lamps the housewife is always very careful that every part of the lamp is scrupulously clean and the burner is boiled to remove any accumulation of dirt. She forgets, though, that her gas jet is just as likely to accumulate soot. Often there is quite a little collection of dust and if this is cleared away the improvement in the light is noticeable.

"A comic actor, you know, was talking about the spring planting that was under way in his suburban home."

"I propose," he said, "to plant onions with my potatoes, the idea being that the onion's tear compelling powers will work on the potatoes' eyes and thus cause the plants to irrigate themselves."

He also paid a tribute to republican leader Mann that is a gem in its way.

UP-TO-DATE HOUSEKEEPING

He complained that people are apt to overestimate the selling price of

"Many make the mistake of ordering their coffee by the price instead of by the brand. Any woman who always pays the same price per pound for coffee cannot expect to get always the same quality."

"To illustrate, we will say that one pays thirty cents a pound for coffee. When the crop is short, she does not get as good coffee as when there is a plentiful crop. When the crop is short, the grocer of necessity must supply a lower grade. It is, therefore, only natural that complaints should result. And the complaint being purely the result of inferior drinking quality."

"There is one coffee that is always the same unvarying good quality. It is the Mex-O-Ja brand, and the price goes up and down with the supply of green coffee."

"Mex-O-Ja is a blend of genuine Sao Paulo and Mexican varieties, and a pound will make forty cups of full, rich-flavored liquor."

"Every package contains sixteen ounces, net weight, of coffee, put up in a sanitary bag, with a protecting carton bearing broad green and red stripes. Most grocers now sell Mex-O-Ja."

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

ORIGIN OF PUBLIC BATH
HOUSES IN ENGLAND.

By A. W. MACY.

At the beginning of Queen Victoria's reign there were no public bath houses in England. Thirty thousand people were living in eight thousand cellars in Liverpool, none of which had drains or sewers, and nearly all of which were subject to inundation after heavy rains.

In the poorer districts of London, and in nearly all the other cities and towns throughout England, the supply of water was wholly inadequate to preserve the cleanliness of the laboring people. But steps to remedy this state of affairs had already been taken. In 1832, when the cholera broke out, Catherine Wilson, a London woman in moderate circumstances, was so impressed with the necessity of cleanliness as a preventive of disease, that she invited some of her poorer neighbors to come to her comparatively better house to wash and dry their clothes. The experiment was so successful, and the good results so apparent, that some benevolently inclined people united to help her extend her operations. This was the beginning of the present extensive system of public bath houses in England.

Childhood Souvenirs.

A good idea for mothers who like to have souvenirs of their little one's childhood is to paste in a book samples from every new dress or suit, with a picture of the pattern if possible. Not only is this interesting for both mother and children in time to come, but it forms a valuable history of costume for the period, and is of practical service as well by insuring variety in dress from year to year.

Olive Oil for Leather.
Leather furniture, especially when placed near the register, is liable to dry and crack. An excellent method of keeping it from looking old and showing cracks is to go over the leather with a soft rag dipped in olive oil and then going over the whole surface again with a dry rag. It is not necessary to go over the leather more than once in three or four months, just enough to keep it soft.

Monuments of Unperishable Granite

Wind, sun or rain will not efface the inscription on a monument for centuries, if they're put on right. It takes expert workmanship to properly engrave the inscription on a hard piece of granite or marble; also it takes skill to properly mount it on its base so that it will not tip or slide off in a few months.

It's quite logical that you should come here for your monument when you consider the expert work, the courteous attention and very reasonable prices we charge.

At The Theatre

THE PROPER COSTUMING OF SHAKESPEARE.

The engagement of Southern and Marlowe at Myers Theatre on Wednesday evening, April 17th in "The Taming of the Shrew," brings up a new and proper costuming of the plays of Shakespeare. In these days of elaborate and correct settings for the immortal dramas, it may come as a surprise to those untrained in theatrical lore, that up to sixty years ago no effort had been made to supply appropriate dress. This so-called innovation, the "observance of historical fashions," was introduced by Charles Kean and Samuel Phelps.

When one takes into account the correctness of costuming that has marked the productions of Shakespeare's dramas by Southern and Marlowe, it comes as a rude shock to the imagination to learn of the ridiculous gauds that some of the old actors were wont to furnish their characters.

The great Herford, for example, played Hamlet, in the English dress of his own period, wearing the hared kerchief then in fashion. Garrick's Hamlet appeared in a court suit of black, a coat, waist-coat and knee breeches, short wig with quills and buckles on shoes, ruffles at the wrists, and the flowing ends of an ample cravat hanging over the chest.

It would be no more absurd for Mr. Southern to play the melancholy Dane in evening dress and opera hat. Garrick was a great actor; but one can hardly imagine a man of his stamp of mind playing the Thane of Cawdor in an officer's scarlet coat, and with trousers of the cut then in fashion. It is said, also, that the great John Kemble was as absurd in many respects as his immediate predecessors in his ideas of suitable costumes. His Hamlet was described as dressed in a fancy suit, which defied chronology, a carefully combed and powdered wig, such as never sat on Scandinavian head, and a blaze of jeweled orders on the breast of him who courted seclusion. On one occasion Kemble actually wore the Order of the Garter beneath his knee!

This was anachronism gone mad. Macready, it surprises one to learn, occasionally made mistakes that almost seem impossible in one who had been such a diligent and intelligent student of dramatic literature. Gaudier ridiculed his dress in Othello as absurd, while John Coleman described his Hamlet costume as follows: "He wore a dress, the waist of which nearly reached his knees; a hat with a wide plume; his gloves much too large for him; a ballet skirt of gray-colored satin, which looked simply dirty; and what with gaudy, awkward, angular figure, his grizzled hair, his dark beard close shaven to his square jaw, yet unsoftened by a trace of pliancy, his irregular features, his queer, extraordinary nose, and his long, skinny neck, he appeared positively hideous."

The actor who would not dare to so disregard the historical accuracy would be hoisted off the boards. In our days, nothing is neglected which is calculated to better enable the audience to realize the truth of the picture. Yet, curious as it may seem, there are those who disagree with the effort, denying common sense and forgetting for the moment the fact that during Shakespeare's time, and with his evident consent and approval, Richard the Third was presented with actors attired in the dress of the time, borrowed from the collection of historical costumes in the Tower of London.

A few years ago, Lord Lytton laid it down as a dogma of art that "archaeology is entirely out of place in the presentation of any of Shakespeare's plays, and the attempt to introduce it, one of the stupidest pedantries of an age of prizes." Oscar Wilde replied to this: "Anybody who cares to study Shakespeare's methods will see that there is absolutely no dramatist of the French, English or Athenian age who relies so much for his historical effects on the dress of his actors as Shakespeare does himself."

In an essay, "The Truth of Masque," Wilde had much to say of pertinent interest on this subject: "Knowing how the artistic temperament was always fascinated by beauty of costume, Shakespeare constantly introduces into his plays monstrosities and dances, purely for the sake of the pleasure which they give the eye; and we have still his stages."

SEE IF YOUR CHILD'S TONGUE IS COATED
If Cross, Feverish, Dillious Give Delicous "Syrup of Figs" to Cleanse It's Little Bowels.

Look at the tongue, Mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's bowels, the stomach, liver and 20 feet of bowels are clogged up with purifying waste matter and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once. When your child is listless, drooping, pale, doesn't sleep soundly or eat heartily, is cross, fretful, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad, has stomachache, diarrhoea, sore throat, or is full of cold, give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours the foul, constipated waste will gently move on and out of his little bowels without nausea, griping or weakness, and you surely will have a well, happy and smiling child again shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children, being composed entirely of delicious figs, senna and aromatics. It cannot be harmful, besides they dearly love its delicious taste.

Mothers should always keep Syrup of Figs handy. It is the only stomach, liver and bowel cleanser and regulator needed. A little given to-day will save a sick child tomorrow. Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package. Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious tasting, genuine reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

directions for the three great productions in Henry the Eighth, directions which are characterized by the most extraordinary elaborateness of detail down to the collar of a shirt, and the pearls in Anne Boleyn's hair, indeed, it would be quite easy for a modern manager to reproduce these pageants absolutely as Shakespeare had them designed.

"The point, however, which I wish to emphasize is, not that Shakespeare appreciated the value of lovely costumes in adding picturesque quality to poetry, but that he saw how important costume is as a means of producing certain dramatic effects. Many of his plays such as "Measure for Measure," "Twelfth Night," "The Two Gentlemen of Verona," "All's Well That Ends Well," "Cymbeline," and others, depend for their illusion on the character of the various dresses worn by the hero or the heroine; the delightful scene in "Henry the Sixth," on the modern miracles of healing by faith, loses all its point unless Gloucester is in black and scarlet, and the denouement of the "Merry Wives of Windsor" hinges on the color of Anne Page's gown.

"Even small details of dress, such as the color of a majordomo's stockings, the pattern on a wife's handkerchief, the sleeve of a young soldier, and a fashionable woman's bonnet, become in Shakespeare's hands points of actual dramatic importance, and by some of them the action of the play in question is conditioned absolutely.

"Many other dramatists have availed themselves of costume as a method of expressing directly to the audience the character of a person on his entrance, though hardly so brilliantly as Shakespeare has done in the case of the dandy Parolles, whose dress, by the way, only an archaeologist can understand: the fun of a master and servant exchanging coats in presence of the audience, of shipwrecked sailors squabbling over the division of a lot of fine clothes, and of a fatter dressed up like a duke while he is in his cups, are regarded as part of that great master which costume has always played comedy from the time of Aristophanes down to Mr. Gilbert; but none from the mere details of apparel and adornment has ever drawn such strong of contrast, and such pathos, as Shakespeare himself.

"As regards the resources which Shakespeare had at his disposal, it is to be remarked that, while he more than once complains of the smallness of the stage on which he has to produce his historical plays, and of the want of scenery which obliges him to cut many effective open-air incidents, he always writes as a dramatist, who had at his disposal a most elaborate theatrical wardrobe, and who could rely on the actors taking pains about their make-up.

"Of Shakespeare it may be said he was the first to see the dramatic value of doublets and that a climax may depend on a costume.

"This use of archaeology in shows, so far from being a bit of pedantic pedantry, is in every way legitimate and beautiful. For the stage is not merely the meeting-place of all the arts, but is also the return of art to life.

"For what is the use to the stage of that archaeology which has so strangely terrified the critics, but that it, and it alone, can give us the architecture and apparel suitable to the time in which the action of the play passes? It enables us to see a Greek dressed like a Greek, and an Italian like an Italian; to enjoy the ravages of Venice and the balconies of Verona; and, if the play deals with any of the great eras in our country's history, to contemplate the age in its proper attire, and the king in his habit as he lived.

"A dramatist who laid such stress on historical accuracy of fact would have welcomed historical accuracy of costume as a most important adjunct to his historical method. And I have no hesitation in saying that he did so.

"I think it is a pity that so many critics should have set themselves to attack one of the most important movements on the modern stage before that movement has at all reached its proper perfection. That it will, however, I feel as certain as that we shall require from our dramatic critics in the future higher qualifications than that they can remember Macready or have seen Benjamin Webster; we shall require of them, indeed, that they cultivate a sense of beauty.

"MUTT AND JEFF."
Mr. "A. Mut" and his bosom friend "Jeff" will be guests of the city of Jamesville on Saturday, April 27, meeting and evening entertainment their many friends at the Myers Theatre. These two father peculiar gentlemen, while having no intimate acquaintance in this city, are undoubtedly as well known by reputation as President Taft. Their reputations were obtained by slightly different means, however. President Taft is looking after our well being, by diplomatic and political strategy, while "Mutt and Jeff" are administering "the laugh cure" for what ails you. Both are undoubtedly performing very commendable duties and obtaining inestimable results. A visit to the Myers Theatre during the sojourn of "Mutt and Jeff" in this city, will result in much physical and mental improvement.

JANESVILLE COMMON COUNCIL IS NO MORE

SESSION HELD LAST EVENING WAS FINAL GATHERING OF HISTORIC BODY.

WELCOME NEW REGIME

Mayor Nichols and Alderman Dullin Make Speeches—Postpone Fixing Salary of Visiting Nurse.

With the adoption of the motion to adjourn, put by Alderman Buchholz and the tap of Mayor Nichols' gavel, there passed out of existence last night the Common Council of the city of Jamesville, a body which has been continuously identified with its municipal government since its organization in 1853. Henceforth real, live, and unmistakable Jamesville Aldermen will be as extinct as the mammoth and dinosaur, unless the citizens see fit to return to the methods of the past.

Except for a slight tilt between Alderman Buchholz and Hall over an alleged trespass on his jurisdiction, the meeting was characterized by good feeling, and Mayor Nichols and Alderman Dullin in their closing speeches expressed their best wishes and hearty support of the form of city government and the men chosen to administer it. Nine of the ten Aldermen, Shurtliff, Schmidley, Hall, Connel, Shorland, Spohn, Donahue, Dullin and Buchholz were present. Alderman Evans, was the only member of the council unable to attend the final session.

Most prominent among the matters coming before the Council for its consideration were the claims of Mary E. Reed of $125 for damage to her property on North Pearl street, caused by changing the grade of the street in 1888, the ordinance establishing the salary of the visiting nurse at $300, and the order to repair Center avenue from State street to the city limits with gravel or cinders.

The claim of Miss Mary Reed was voted allowed by a vote of seven to two. When the claim was first presented, damages of $255 were asked, but later Miss Mary Reed offered through her attorneys to compromise for the sum of $125. Alderman Dullin complained that the sidewalk in front of her property was a mere jumble of bricks in the mud and though he thought her claim should be allowed he also believed it should be on condition that she build a standard cement walk in front of her property. He introduced an amendment that the claim be left over to the commission, but it was defeated by a vote of 5 to 4.

was introduced by Alderman Shurtliff. This resolution also provided that the person appointed to this office must first receive the approval of the Board of Directors of the Jamesville Anti-Tuberculosis Association. In the form first presented by Alderman Shurtliff the amount of the salary was left blank. The resolution was drawn by order of officers of the Association who did not wish to dictate to the Council as to what the salary should be. In the suggestion of Mayor Nichols, $300 was made the figure.

Alderman Hall moved that the resolution be laid over as he did not see any use in passing an order that died with the Common Council. Mayor Nichols replied that since the Common Council has initiated the proposition and had brought it so far along, he saw no reason why the Council should not finish it by making an appropriation sufficient to maintain the office the first year. The question as to whether the action of the Council held good was referred to City Attorney H. L. Maxfield who replied that it did. Alderman Dullin expressed his approval of the measure but thought it should be laid over. The ayes and noes were called for by Alderman Hall seven voting that the resolution be laid over, and two against the motion.

To Repair Center Avenue.
A long-standing bone of contention was disposed of last night when the Council passed by a unanimous vote an order to the Street Commissioner to repair Center avenue with gravel and cinders from State street to the City limits.

Rescind Improvement Order.
A slight tilt between Alderman Buchholz and Alderman Hall was precipitated when the latter introduced a motion to rescind the order passed at a recent meeting that common curbs and gutters be laid on Carroll street from Clay to Prospect street. Buchholz charged that the Alderman from the third ward was interfering where he had no business to do so, and said that whatever was done in his ward should be criticized by the property owners interested and not by an outsider. Alderman Hall in reply accused Alderman Buchholz of spite work in ordering improvements on only one part of the street when it was needed on all of it. Buchholz, he said, had interfered on more than one occasion in the third ward and he thought it about time to return the compliment. To this Buchholz came back with a retort that he had interfered just enough in the third ward on April 2, to put Hall where he belonged in the race for the office of Commissioner. The order to rescind was put to a vote and passed by a vote of 8 to 1.

Other Street Work.
Brick cross walks were ordered laid by the order of Alderman Spohn on Park street on the south side of Galen street, and on Fifth street on the west side of Lincoln street. The City Engineer was instructed to establish a grade on Pacific avenue between Glen street and St. Mary's avenue, the width of the street to be thirty-eight feet. This had first been set at forty feet but the residents asked that it be changed. Alderman Buchholz expressed himself as opposed to the motion and attached Alderman Hall who introduced the order. He declared it was an imposition upon those citizens who had laid curb and gutter to have them pay for the changes proposed, and introduced an amendment providing that the expense of changing the turn curbs and gutters already provided at the corners of Glen street be done by all the residents of the street. His amendment was passed by a vote of 7 to 2 and the original motion adopted unanimously.

Other Business.
Mayor Nichols announced the appointment of Martin Hessman as special policeman from April 15 to 21, and of John Dalton from April 8 to July 8. The order of Alderman Shurtliff that the revised and codified city ordinances be published was passed without dissenting vote. J. E. Barry, on the motion of Alderman Connel, was granted permission to move a building from North First street to the corner of North Bluff and Glen streets. The resolution of Roy M. Cummings as City Clerk was presented and accepted, as was also the bonds and oaths of the new Mayor and Councilmen and other city officers. The contract and bond of Gind, Graham, & Company of Freeport, for the improvement of North Main street was approved. City Attorney H. L. Maxfield presented his report of expenditures incurred in the service of the city, most of the items being expenses of hearings and conferences with the Rate Commission on the suit of the city versus the water company. His report was accepted.

Given Permission to Build.
The Hodgekott Milling Company on their petition were granted permission to build an addition to their mill over the race-way on North River street. The report of the Street Assessment Committee on the proposals made to improve North Main street was adopted on the motion of Alderman Shorland. The council also gave its approval to the order introduced by Alderman Schmidley, that the city advertise for bids for the publication of the city ordinances and notices.

Will Notify Commission.
As the result of the passage of the motion introduced by Alderman Spohn, the Rate Commission will be notified of the vote of the city on the question of buying the Jamesville Water Company and be asked to make a valuation of the company's plant and a tributary system, the amount to be paid by the city for its purchase.

Mayor Nichols in Farewell Speech.
After all business had been disposed of Mayor Nichols addressed the members of the Common Council, expressing his pleasure in presiding at their meetings and his assurance that though there had been many a wordy battle on the Councilroom floor, that he cherished no malice or ill feeling toward any member. He was of the opinion that all personal attacks and stinging words had been spoken by men who thoroughly believed that they were acting in the best interests of their constituents and the city. He expressed himself as a supporter of the commission form of government, not because of unfriendliness to the members of the council, but because he believed that a few men giving their entire time to the city business could achieve the best results. Should the new system fail or prove unsatisfactory he would be one of the first to sign a petition for a return to the Common Council plan.

Alderman Dullin Responds.
Alderman Dullin was the only member of the council to comment on the passing from existence of that body. He said that he had served in the Council for nine years, that he had experienced both its ups and downs, but that he had at all times served his ward to the best of his judgment. He had had his glories on the floor, but only there. When he left the councilroom he left them, behind not to resume them until the next meeting. He believed that this was the right way to conduct the city's business, to take all action in the open, so that the people would know what was going on. Alderman Dullin hoped that the new government would give the fullest publicity to its actions and he was going to boost for its success as the people had shown by their votes that they wanted it.

After the reading of the minutes of the meeting by the City Clerk the council adjourned.

What YOUR Farm Needs MOST

Let us give you a copy of the Great Western Manure Spreader Catalog. Read how much barnyard manure means to your soil, your crops, your profits. Learn a lesson from the run-down farms you know about—land from which crops have taken all the producing power. How long will your land be rich unless you put back what the crops take out? Spread manure! Not with a pitchfork, because doing it with a fork does more harm than good—use a

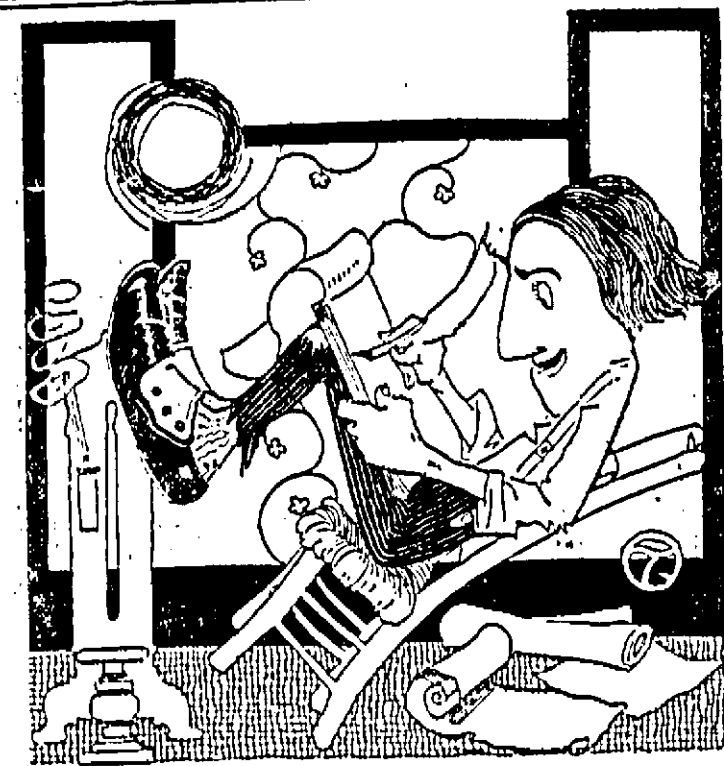

Great Western Spreader

The Great Western has an all oak frame, double oak bolsters, oak pole, oak axle caps, oak heater, oak bed stakes, oak rick head and oak cross pieces. It has hickory single trees, hickory double trees and hickory neck yoke. The frame cannot be twisted out of shape, no parts can bind—hence it is the lightest draft spreader made. The GREAT WESTERN endles apron runs on 75 large rollers—one set on each side of the heavy oak frame and one set supporting the center. These large rollers are set close together so there's no jangling or waving of the apron slats. The Great Western has a big 15-inch indestructible rubber tire with a wheel that weighs 40c per pound. This is attached with malleable braces to two big, heavy, solid oak bolsters. It is arranged so that if one wheel drops into a hole or rut, there's no strain or binding on the frame. The Great Western malleable fifth wheel and heavy oak bolsters are set back two feet under the box so the load is evenly balanced on all four wheels. The front wheels of the Great Western track with the rear wheels.

Ready For You NOW

Come and see this wonderful machine. Let us prove how it increases your crops $4 to $8 per acre—why it is better than any other spreader built—why it is guaranteed 50% stronger, 50% more durable, 50% less breakage, 50% better in every way than any other spreader in the world. Come in this week—tomorrow if you possibly can.

I wonder why the rooster throws such fervor in his tooting? At dawn he breaks up his nap and sends sleep chattering. He and listen to his noise, and wonder, while I'm waiting, what sort of weird ecstatic joys the rooster's celebrating. To me his humble journey seems not worth a pun or a puny; what hope inspires him as he screeams? Why all his optimism? Oh, I can understand a dog that howls his hideous dirges through all the midnight muck and fog; like me, he just howls. He sees so much of ill and wrong, so much of woe and sorrow, he must uplift his growling soul, and hope he'll die tomorrow. The rooster, I sympathize with those who howl, with all things sad and broadening, the dog, the cat and the owl, penned in a world of deluding. But ah, I cannot understand the rooster's joyous carol, an anthem in a sombre land that has grief by the barrel! He lives in dark and gloomy pen, where biddy clucks and hatchlings; his life is spent with sly hens for whom he digs and scratches. To earn his barnyard's daily bread he's busy as a weaver; and then at last his silly head is whacked off with a cleaver. The rooster should a cavern seek, a hermit life pursue; why give a loud, triumphant shriek when there is nothing doing?

The Wrong Way.

"Yes, but in the natural way."
"How do you mean?"

"That's a hard thing to do when his lot happens to be under a suburban frog pond."
